Virtualstock appoints new Healthcare Product Strategist Graham Medwell from Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust

Virtualstock, the high-growth British tech firm that is revolutionizing NHS procurement with its SaaS platform The Edge4Health™, is pleased to announce the appointment of a new Healthcare Product Strategist, Graham Medwell, with effect from 18th June 2018.

Graham is the current e-Business Manager and Scan4Safety Product lead at Leeds Teaching Hospitals NHS Trust. He brings over 25 years' experience in healthcare supply chain technologies and change management, having been at the forefront of eProcurement and a keen advocate of using data standards to improve patient safety. His responsibilities will be to help implement a world-class leading digital supply chain within healthcare and drive Virtualstock's offering as it enters its next stage of growth.

Virtualstock CEO and Chairman, Andrew Mills, said, "We are delighted to welcome Graham to our team. His experience in healthcare supply chain technology will prove invaluable as we further develop our offering, with continuous commitment to the NHS and wider public sector."

James Thirkill, VP & GM, Healthcare and Public Sector, added, "As a company, we are helping the NHS achieve the £1bn p.a. procurement efficiency savings identified by Lord Carter by working with The Shelford Group and many other leading Trusts, in partnership with NHS Shared Business Services. Graham will be key in furthering the growth of our product to achieve its full potential."

Graham said, "I am very excited to be joining Virtualstock and to further enhance the product strategy of The Edge4Health™ and drive the realisation of the significant benefits of the platform for both providers and suppliers."

About Virtualstock

Virtualstock is a leading British Software as a Service (SaaS) company that is driving savings, increasing efficiency and improving compliance across the healthcare sector with its game-changing product The Edge4Health™. The enabling technology facilitates supply chain processes for both Trusts and suppliers and is predicted to help achieve up to £1bn annual efficiency savings for the NHS, as identified by Lord Carter.

How it works: the technology delivers best-in class eProcurement functionality, including a consumer-style B2B marketplace, full procure-to-pay (P2P), product information management (PIM), catalogue management, order management, inventory and stock management, e-invoicing, track and trace, and analytics. The platform is GS1 and PEPPOL certified.

In addition to healthcare, Virtualstock has long provided its technology to many retail clients, including 6 of top 10 UK retailers like Tesco, Argos, and John Lewis. The company is looking to expand into other sectors.
